

How do you fold a pocket square for a wedding?

There are a variety of folds to choose, from the classic square fold to an artistic flower. We've picked two to help you choose.

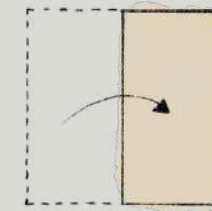

The classic fold

A simple fold that creates a crisp line across your suit pocket, ideal for a smart but discrete look that gives priority to your boutonniere.

1

Lie your pocket square on a flat surface

2

Fold the fabric in half from left to right.

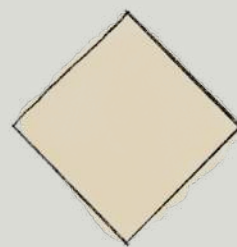

3

Fold again from bottom upwards to the approximate depth of your pocket, which should leave about 1/4 inch of material spare. This is the part that remains visible above your pocket line.

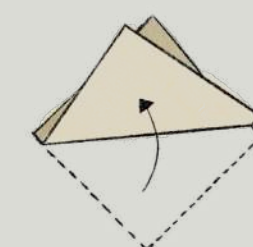

The four peak pocket square

This more adventurous fold creates an effective design that would work well with your patterned fabrics.

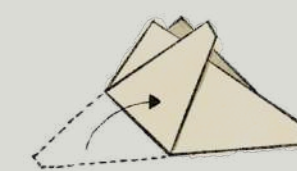

1

Lay your pocket square on a flat surface, with the corners pointing top and bottom.

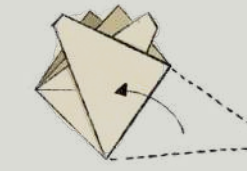

2

Fold the bottom half up to the top, but slightly off centre so that the bottom corner is now slightly to the left of the top corner. This creates two 'peaks'.

3

Fold the left corner over towards the right, so that it creates a third 'peak'.

4

Repeat this from the right, bringing the right corner over to far left, creating a 4th 'peak'.

Tuck this into your breast pocket, gently tugging the peaks into shape.
